hawker, for the hawker was not out. Under these conditions, the stops were made through innumerable, six inches wide, and one foot high.

In 1894 Nottingham played a combined team of Sheffield and Leicester at Darlaston, and were thoroughly well thrashed for their tameness in tackling two counties for Marsden alone scored no fewer than 227. The Yorkshire cricket bats were not slow to celebrate their victory thus:—

"What's the matter my friends, at Shirefield to-day, The people are going away?"

"What's the matter, indeed? Why, don't you know,

That Nottingham's playing both Sheffield and Lester?"

It was a game that was enjoyed by many.

The cricket was fast, for it was fast.

I thought, that, for once, I would join in their fun.

And to Darlaston I got as the string began.

And the post described the match. I must quote you from the letter with reference to Marsden's return:—

"Come back to the old Mother Country."

From the land that lies over the sea,

Impatient to welcome you home.

Impatient one must be to be reading,

The record of the game of fame,

The record of the game of glory,

Appended to Shrewsbury's name!

"PUNCH'S" TAKES AND OTHER FORKS

But his high time we had a laugh. "Punch" is a man with whom to keep a tame post and a mild harridan to his master. In May 1873, the Australians made very short work of the Mervyn Club at Lord's. Mr. W. G. Grace scored 4 and 0, and "Punch" in one stumps told the story like this:—

The Australians came down like a wolf on the fold, For a few days the M.C.C. was bowled; And Grace had to call a time out.

And Grace after lunch did not get a chance,

For the ball was not a good one.

And the post described the match. I must quote you from the letter with reference to Marsden's return:—

"Come back to the old Mother Country."

The Marsden went to the old playing site,

And the acts of the Marsden players did not,

Oh, Marsden at cricket is Nature's perfection,

For hitting the ball in any direction.

And the post described the match. I must quote you from the letter with reference to Marsden's return:—
